“ Mrs. Michael is the reason I fell in love with music. She was such an inspiration to have as a teacher at such a young age. She will be deeply missed but I will treasure the memories!

“ Lynne will be missed so much by our family. She taught me so much, not just about music, but so much more. My boys are so sad to lose their great piano teacher, and I sure am missing my friend. Thank you for always giving me a confidence boost with your encouraging words.

“ Lynne was the kind of person when you met her she was always a friend. I met the Michaels when I moved across the street from them. I have only seen Lynne a handful of times over the years since I moved. There are many people that a person meets along the way in life that are nice and memorable. Lynne was a person that you liked from the beginning. Lynne was one of those type of people that was just plain nice without trying . Her smile laugh and sparkle in her eye is what made Lynne Lynne in my eyes. I know I don't know Lynne like so many of you but seeing posts through Facebook and keeping up that way her family and friends are blessed to have had her in their lives. My kids and I still talk about the Clark Street days and have a hearty laugh about Lynne coming to the rescue with a lice infestation . It was late at night and we weren't home and Lynne bless her heart called Mr. Driva late at night and he opened the store for her and she came over and gave my kids a treatment. I don't know if Chris or Paul remember a time when they came over and got my kids because of a strange man in my house that happened to be my dad. No we were not neglective parents. Not that all the neighbors weren't great but the Michaels and the Cooks watched out for everyone. A woman lived by so many just for knowing her. No matter how little or how much! Rest In Peace Lynne you and Elliot are now together. Always and forever you will be remembered as truly one of the nicest kindest people I have ever met.
